

The present monopolizing concentration of power in the hands of a few mega-corporations hampers our democratic process. And the thought that FCC deregulation will allow yet more control of public information is frightening.